

SCOOP DOUBLE EDITION

December '22 January '23

Message From the President

Hello everyone! A very happy new year and season's greetings! This is a double edition of our newsletter.

TIP provides a platform for the students to prove their creative skills. It has always taken pride in honouring the overall personalities of the students and we have been extremely successful so far. Presently, the country is passing through a difficult economic phase. The inflation has hit to a record level, but I am a firm believer of positivity and sincerely hope that with perseverance and steadfastness, we can always overcome this difficult phase, provided we reunite as one fraternity and one nation.

I would urge our student body to play their role in helping their fellow beings, no matter where they are and regardless of caste, creed, or religion. Even a small sum of money matters a lot.

Recently, a number of employers visited our campus for recruitment and counselling drive. Notable were Diners and Soorty. I am extremely thankful to those companies and buying houses, which have placed their trust in our students and prefer them over other graduates in hiring.

I am proud to say that a sizeable number of our graduates are working at midlevel as well as senior positions in the textile industry and contributing their part in the overall wellbeing of our country.

Happy Reading!

Message From the Editor in Chief

Greetings, all! Let me first, begin by wishing you with a very happy and prosperous new year! A new year brings a fresh new slate of 365 sheets. Each waiting to be manifested with positivity and enthusiasm. This year, I have embarked on a different journey of manifestations. I have bought myself a very pretty looking jar and decorated it as per my aesthetic liking. Every week, I shall be writing of something that I am thankful for. By the end of the year, I would have fifty-two fancy notes where I have offered gratitude for the blessings in my life. I feel that it is absolutely imperative to be thankful for having what we have.

This e-newsletter is a double edition. A lot has been happening on campus and I felt before breaking off for a short break from campus, a bigger compilation would be better. I have absolutely cherished being a part of all the events that I have been invited to and the immense respect and love that you folks have given to me in a short span of time. I have made many new friends on campus and I enjoy meeting each and everyone of you. I would like to make special mention of two fine gentlemen who have always helped me out. Misters Asad Zawar and Hashir Iqbal, thank you for being you and your constant support. I want to make a special mention of Abde Murtaza Jorbai for being our official photographer. You boys rock!

I have been lauded for my work by you all, and I thank you from the bottom of my heart. I still encourage you all to email me your work that you want to be published and I shall cater to it. It is your work and you need to be celebrated at all times!

Again, I wish you all a beautiful and fresh start of 2023!

We take pride in our students' work and encourage young talent to display their creativity at all times.

Sindh Cultural Day

No article of clothing in the Indus Valley Civilization is as much a symbol of history, culture and native wisdom as Ajrak, a dexterously block printed cloth, dyed in natural agents tried and tested over centuries. It has patterns that change meanings with slightest variations in color and design.

Over the centuries, the most common symbolism attached to Ajrak is as a shawl that marks honour, nobleness, and civility of its wearer; young or old, man, woman or child. Most commonly associated with the sartorial practices of communities living in today's province of Sindh of Pakistan.

Our Sindhi students presented faculty members with Ajrak as a token of respect and honour. It was a day worth remembering. Sindhi tunes were played to celebrate the cultural day of Sindh.

Recruitment & Selection Drive

Two recruitment and selection drives were held on campus to facilitate the final year students of the Institute. Soorty and Diners facilitated final year students with the criteria required for the prospective employees and what the industry demands from the fresh talent.

Women Entrepreneurship Launch

For the expanding of women entrepreneurship across Pakistan in wake of easing the means of financing their businesses at the grass roots level, Trade Development Authority Pakistan (TDAP) as per its mandate has planned to look into the areas of women dependency on others for their day-to-day business practices and aimed at training them through various methods and adopt latest trends to set up their own businesses as a means to earn and be independent.

The students and faculty members of TIP, Mr. Baghpati and Mr. Gauhar Ajmal represented the Institute with their products for TDAPs newly developed website on 'Women Entrepreneurship'. This event was inaugurated by Mr. Zubair Motiwala, Chief Executive TDAP. The event was attended by well known women entrepreneurs.

Khudgharz Concert Rocks TIP

Shakespeare's Orisino in Twelfth Night opened the play with a very famous dialogue, "If music be the food of love, play on!" We at the Institute love music & enjoy it to the core. The student council arranged a musical evening for their students. Khudgharz entertained our students by singing songs of their choice. It was a memorable and much enjoyed evening by the students. The official photographer for the event was our student Abd e Munaf Murtaza Jorbai of AMM 1A.

This small-scale fashion show was thoroughly enjoyed by students and faculty alike!
